I have a 'Contact' table and a 'Group' table. I want to display groups and their contacts as a radio selection list. I have written a class for the group and one for the contacts. I want the new page to display the group the user chose, and have buttons for adding and deleting contacts that are relevant to that group. Everything is working except the radio button. I can't work out how to assign an array of contacts to the group. The contact class has a ToList method to return a list of contacts. The group class has a ToList() method to return a list of groups. I can see that I need to add the newly-selected groups to the group array and I need to select from that array. I just can't work out how to do that. Any ideas? Thanks, Mark Contact class Public Class Contact Public GroupID As Integer Public MemberName As String Public LastName As String Public FirstName As String Public Address1 As String Public City As String Public State As String Public PostalCode As String Public Country As String End Class Group Class Public Class Group Public GroupName As String Public GroupID As Integer Public CategoryID As Integer End Class The New.aspx file

Video-assisted thoracoscopic surgery for pulmonary resection is becoming more commonly used; however, its benefits are not clear. We compared the efficacy and safety of video-assisted thoracoscopic surgery (VATS) and open lobectomy for peripheral lung cancer. From January 2002 to December 2004, 62 patients underwent lobectomy by VATS and 66 by open lobectomy. The surgical approach was determined according to the patient's preference. In the open lobectomy group, the median tumor size was 3 cm, and the thoracotomy was extended in 47 (71.2%) of the 66 patients. The patients in the VATS lobectomy group were significantly younger than those in the open lobectomy group, with an average age of 60.2 +/- 6.3 years versus 65.1 +/- 8.6 years (p = 0.01). The operative time was shorter in the VATS lobectomy group (252 +/- 92 versus 321 +/- 90 min; p = 0.00), and the median postoperative hospital stay was 5.0 +/- 1.9 days versus 7.1 +/- 3.0 days in the open lobectomy group (p = 0.00). Intraoperative and postoperative complications were significantly fewer in the VATS lobectomy group than in the open lobectomy group (p = 0.02 and p = 0.00, respectively). Postoperative complications developed in 16 patients in the VATS lobectomy group (25.8%) and in 31 patients in the open lobectomy group (47.0%). However, the incidence of chest pain after open lobectomy was statistically significantly higher than that after VATS lobectomy (4.6% versus 0%, p = 0.01). In the

I found a new model that is compatible with Ubuntu. The new model is an 8TB HDD. I would like to have my laptop be able to read and write to this type of hard drive, but I don't know if Ubuntu supports SATA 3.2. Please let me know. A: As Linux doesn't use UFI/GPT we are good and can continue to use UEFIs, which have been ported for Linux. Short answer is: yes you can use them, and since they aren't UFS we don't have to worry about the 12GB filesystem limit either. My thought was you could experiment with ZFS, or ReFS to put the 8TB drive in a RAID1 or 2. When using a ZFS or ReFS filesystem with GPT boot you may need to install grub2-efi, or use grub-efi-amd64-bin. I thought I read something about the new 12TB drives using a different connector or protocol. See A: Each version of Ubuntu comes with a live CD that supports read/write functionality. You can run a live CD on any desktop computer and have access to your internal hard drive. I would check if the Live CD supports reading/writing to your hard drive. If it supports it, it should be a breeze to install onto your desktop PC.
