Plastic Fantasticion is a multiplayer, sci-fi, strategy game set on a procedurally-generated planet populated by artificial life. Four classes of aliens have evolved to fulfil their goals, which seem to be focused around the production and use of technology. The player's role is to venture out into their randomly-generated alien worlds and build their settlement to defend against all surrounding threats. Key Features: Procedurally-Generated Worlds A randomly generated planet is the only place to find the resources to build and expand your civilization. Each playthrough is completely unique, so prepare for an experience unlike any other! Build Defence and Survive Develop your defences with an assortment of towers, walls, fortresses and turrets. Their placement and upgrades depend on the environment they are placed in. Fend off attacks with Gatling guns and turrets, or outmaneuver your enemies by creating traps to catch them in the crossfire. Every fortress, tower, gun, and turret you find has a unique set of upgrade paths that you can follow to make them even better. Catch Technology on Its Way Down! Surround your settlements with any number of traps, mines and automated defence robots to stop enemies from reaching your gates. Every placement of traps and weapons will require a cost in terms of resource to build and maintain. Active AI Make your own decisions, unique to you and your settlements. Use your resources to modify the world around you to help you evolve and expand further. Fortress Defence System The Enemy has a point of focus which they will expend resources to attack from. Use your towers to launch barrages and traps to stop them. 'Social' Interaction The more you collect resources, the better you get, so strive to become a part of the community you've spawned in! The best way to achieve this is to equip your settlements with shops. 1-5 Players 4 Classes 62 Settlements 100+ Resources 128+ Units AI Build a strong base of defensive structures and collect resources as you expand your colony in this grand strategy game. The Beginning: I had created this piece a while ago but then I stopped playing for a while and thought that I'd be more than happy to show it to the community. I had created this piece a while ago but then I stopped playing for a while and thought that I'd be more than happy to show it to the community. This is one of my favorite X-Men (in my opinion one of the best) character, I really love the attitude he has and how he's just looking for answers and what is going on. He does feel pretty lonely though, and also he feels like a outcast (at least a bit). When he looks at Professor X he feels there is no hope and when he sees the other members of the team they mostly see him as the loser and funny guy that looks for answers with X-Men (he also represents hope, he doesn't really look for answers, he knows he's different and he's waiting for someone to tell him about himself. He is considered the outsider of the team, even when he's one of the best in the team. Here are some links to help you understand him better: His design can be traced to the Free Comic Book Day 2017, but I did make some changes here and there (like his hair). I'm pretty happy with the outcome. I like the shorts and his pants (although some could fit better, I hope to improve on it) I hope you liked it and if you have any feedback please comment and let me know what you think, I'd love to hear your thoughts. Whoo 1. Declaration of War The Truth "Excuse me … Mr. Shannon … Lem's got someone on the phone" – said one woman to me, as she and her fellow lady were talking on the other side of the crepe paper of their tiny reception area. My bubble of hope for immediate and amicable resolution to my rent problem was burst. All was painted in a bleak realistic lime. "Hello Mr. Shannon, this is Roxanne Thomas from the District of Columbia Office of Rent Control – how may I help you?" – I heard as I approached the desk. "Yes Sir, I'd like to appeal my eviction. Thank you. Thank you very much I appreciate it." – I replied. "Just a moment Mr. Shannon. Someone from the Rent Police will be in touch with you shortly" "Thank you again!" I said as a very sad part of me was on the verge of losing it. "I certainly understand that this is a difficult time for you, Mr. Shannon. And I do want to help you. However, we have to keep revenue coming in for the D.C. Rent Control Office. If you pay us up until the 28th of June, you can appeal. If you appeal, the Rent Police will have to look into your case, and we will decide whether or not you can stay. If we don't think you qualify for a stay, we will take your security deposit and that should cover the damages that have been done at your apartment." This was a very tough pill to swallow for me. I had poured my soul out on those old genre [url= Wham-Wham-Whoo[/url] Lord's verses and was heartbroken. I needed help. I needed to cry out. Then one of the lady's at the reception area said: "Excuse me … Mr. Shannon … Lem's got someone on the phone" – said one woman to me, as she and her fellow lady were talking on the other side of the crepe paper of their tiny reception area. The fast food chain has been a hit in the rock and hip-hop communities of L.A., particularly in Los Feliz, Silver Lake, Koreatown, and Westwood. It's a comfortable gathering place, and the customer service is usually friendly and helpful. They've even partnered with Los Tigres del Norte to throw an "I Love L.A" burger party with tacos and guacamole and all sorts of burger embellishments. Taking the band's name literally and calling the restaurant Money L reminds people that it is the star of the show.
